Okita Camp Fire Girls Welcome Seven Members

In a lovely candlelight ceremony on Feb. 19, the Okita Camp Fire Girls welcomed seven new members into their ranks.

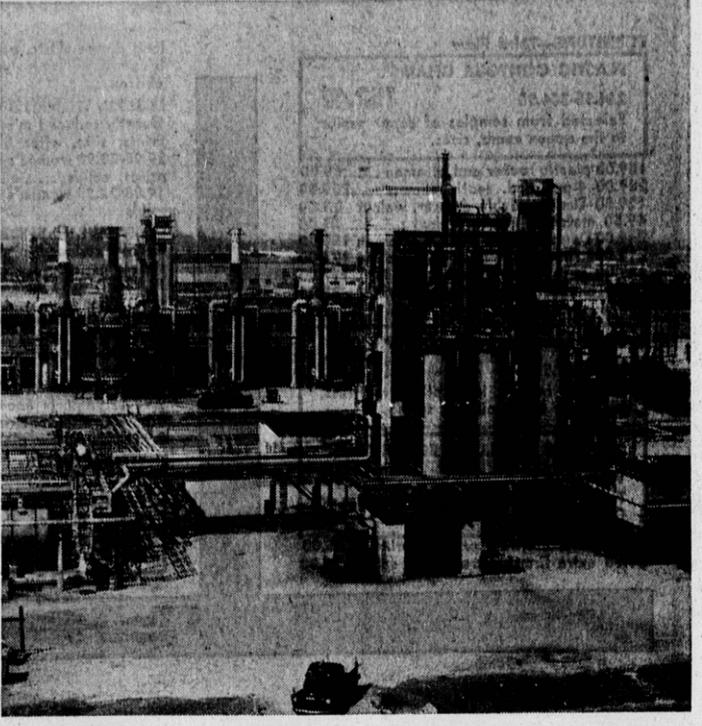

The council fire opened with the Webelo call, followed by entrance of the girls singing their "Processionals." The candles of Work, Health, and Love were lighted by Deborah Lamour, Kristin Johnson, and Sharon Harrower, respectively, and each member lighted the individual candle flame she was tending; then all joined in singing the Camp Fire Law.

Those applying for membership then were brought into the camp fire circle and their candles lit. The new girls repeated the Desire of the Camp Fire Girls, which was signed by all. A cheer of welcome to the Camp Fire trail of the Seven Crafts was given.

The group charter was read by Sharon Madary and placed in the group record book.

The candles of Work, Health, and Love were extinguished by Mary Hagler, Linda Keller and Barbara Corey, respectively, and the council fire was brought to a close with a candle extinguishing ceremony in which all took part, with the wish that the flames of the candles would continue to warm the bonds of friendship and light the way along the Camp Fire trail.

The following are the names of the new members: Charlotte Cagaanan, Nancy Davis, Carol Gregory, Sally Lassere, Diane Mazula, Linda Mims and Linda Rhodes.

LOCAL SHELL PLANT . . . The heart of the styrene manufacturing facilities are visible in this high level view of the Shell Chemical Corp. synthetic rubber plant here. Looking into the distance, the ethylbenzene unit, in the foreground, combines ethylene and benzene. Behind it is the dehydrogenations unit which produces crude styrene. In the far background is the reactor building of the copolymer unit.
